

This space is both infrastructure and destination. The ecological core is designed to slow movement, sharpen awareness, and give the park its strongest sense of identity. As visitors move deeper into the site, boardwalks, crossings, and quiet contemplative nodes create a rhythm of pause, passage, and immersion. Layered plantings frame these moments with seasonal color, shade, habitat value, and texture, allowing the landscape to feel alive, changing, and restorative. Rather than simply moving people through the park, the ecological core invites them to linger within it.
